FROM OUR N. V. CORRESPONDENT.

New York, Toesday, Dec. 16th. Kossuti has carried to all away—his eloquence is irresistible—his sadness even more persuasive.] It is impossible to look upon him and not fee that the concentrated sorrows of a whole people are or his bosons or to hear his measured, solemn yet mosical voice, without acknowledging that he s an earnest, aident, disinterested and most sinvere man. All men and all women who approach or who hear him, are of one accord, that a nable, suffering, much-coduring, much-hoping and much-daring patriot, and that whereas rehas of our country or of nations forbids—and every interest of humanity and liberty enjoins that as individuals we should aid him in his of norts for his country—as will be generously. I hope mannificently aided by gifts and loans of Nothing more is needed. Men in thou ands and tens of thousands in Hungary and is Poland, stand ready to sping to the battle field. if only they can be termished with arms and leaders; and from a spontaneous outpouring of our rich country, money that will bring arms will be

The Press dinner, yesterday, at the Aster Hous was in every respect worthy of the man, the cause, and the important body connected with the press, that honored both. The grand dining room of the Aster House was decorated with most tastefol and beautiful simplicity-every seat was filled by those whose bearing eyes and intelligent countenances told, at a gamee, that they were of the men who deal in mind-and as soon as the hour of toasts and speech-s arrived, the whole unoccupied space in the hall was filled with ladies and with gentlemen, who had purchased tickets at a high price, merely for the privilege of being present. The whole scene —the oxafion—the sparches-constituted a memorable occasion which those even who are not mused to public celebrations will not some forget. But of all this you will see, or have seen, the datails in the news-

Of the spirit of the creasion, however no repor can be made-and yet it was all within the law. And I confess my oif to have undergone a change in my own sentiments, is to the duty of aidin Kossurn-and measurally as to the duty of this government in relation to such aid.

The language of the ifulsemann letter, which brought forth the victorious reply of Daniel Webster, admits that there is power, great power, even over absolute thrones, in the expression of the wishes of this country and Mr. Webster, in that toply, charact to an indisputable right, of which government alone is the judge, as to the time and manner of exercising it, to express our sympathy with the strangles for freedom wherever they occur- to recognize, in Europe or elsewhere the natural growth or offspring of our own free institutions - and to insist that the establishment of such institutions can never be a just cause the armed intervention of third parties.

I do not see why, in reference to the trampling out of Hungarian liberty by the hoofs of the Cos sack, this right should not be re-affirmed with most emphatic language —this is all that Hungary asks or needs; and if England or France, after she shall have re-asserted her character as a trurepublic, shall follow the lead, or co-operate with the U.S. a moral power will be created-a more aid and comfort to the down-trodden be givenwhich may, which would, in all probability, restrain even the domineering power of the Czarand would certainly teach the tottering throne o Austria the policy of reoderation.

With such an expression on the part of gover ment, and nonterful aid from the people-aid that they may lawfolly and will cheefully give-HUNGARY- bleeding, somuged and trampled HUNcarey will rise from the dost, and take her place once more on the frontiers of Western civilization and law, as the bulwar against the semi-barbarianism of the hordes of Russin-European and

But all this you will have heard or considered I doubt not; and so I must pass to other topic-Our winter has begun early, but feir and clear Frost is in the air, and in the earth, but the skies ers bright, and so is all around. Business has been prosperous and not withstanding the recent pressure for money, fev, very few failures have occurred among those in regular business. The latest accounts from England hold out the pros pect of remmerating prices, upon the whole, for our cotton, and some hope of a market for a limited portion of an exec s of agricultural products Exchange is still at a cate which permits--though barely-the exportation of coin-yet, as the new cotton goes forward, and the supplies of gold from California do not fall of, it is not probable that the outward drain to Europe will continue much longer. There is, however, no hope, I fear, that the present Congress will apply the only sure and permanent remedy for the excessive importations which occasion this drain, by a revision of the Tariff-some addition to the duties on coin, woollen, and some other fabrics-and the return to specific duties wherever they can be applied, inend of the perjury-c couraging, soul-destroying, and home-labor-destroying system of ad valores duties. This, then, is the root of the evil. Specific duties, even if no higher in amount than the advalorem percentage new exacted, if it could be imposed upon the cost cost, instead of the cost falsely sworn to ... Specific Duties would greatly relieve the country, and encourage our own industry, but of the e, while Wisconsin, Michigan and Pennsylvania send to Congress only representatives who, ander the came of democracy, side, on all public measure and occasions, with slavery and free trade there can be no hope. Washington, Dec. 11.

The Bounty Land Bill was so amended to-day in the House, by that species of whirlwind action, which only an immense majority can carry, so as to make all had warrants assignable. An attempt was made by Mr. Houris of Tounesco, to enlarge the provisions of the Bounty Land Bill, that is, to give newsy more land, and the more to facilitate the assignability of Land Warrants—but that was slifted temperatury. The simple Bill to teake the Warrants assignable, as are other warrants, went through in a perfect whirlwind, under the high steam crushing pressure of the Previous Question. The Senate will pass it within a week of two and it may be consulered now, as good as a law. Washington, Dec. 11.

So, then, the millions on millions of acres o addic lands granted by Congress to the surviving addiers of the successive wars, and to their heirs, re to be thrown into the arena of speculation. Good News for Immerants.-The N. Y. Tri bone of Dec. 13 says, that in consequence of repeated failures of houses cagaged in drawing bills on Great Britain and Ireland for such small some as our lumingrant population commonly wish to send home to their relatives in the 'old country," or to aid them in crossing the Atlantic, the entirent London Bankers, Barrio Brothens, have consented, in connection with the well known and equally responsible mercantile house of GRINNELL & MINTERS IN New York, to undertake this business, in the hope of protecting the poor from such losses in future. Bills drawn by Grintell & Minturn on Baring Brothers, payable in all parts of the British Isles, will soon be for sale in all the cities and chief towns of the Union, for amounts ranging from several pounds down to a few shillings. We understand that the losses of the class spoken of, by the failure of bill-drawing iouses, have amounted to not less than $50,000 within two years.

Gov. Seward's Speech IN DEFENCE OF HIS RESOLUTION OF WELCOME TO KOSSUTEL

WELCOME TO KOSSUTEL.

Mr Seward and:—I will suppose the resistance to this resolution is successful. The measure is lot; Kossath shakes off the dust gathered on one shore; and retires. Betties withther? There's a question you will do well to consider. To his antive land: No! the realfold awaits his there. To his antive land: No! the realfold awaits his there. To his antive land is not the remaining the desired on one in the dot of the dependent of the dependent man worthy to preside; but I imagine that I see that angest court organized, and the reverend form of Franklin occupies the judgment seat.

On the one side I see Hangary wiled and resting on the arm of Kossuth; behind her are the sympathizing nations and people of Europe; on the other the United States, sustained by Austria, Hussia, Prussia, and France. It is an omir one confinentian.

Russia, Prussin, and France. It is an omitious conjunction.

Hungary complains that the United States have dishonered and insulted her chief; that they found him enjoying the generous hospitality of the Turk, but exposed to the menaces and surveillance of Austria and Russin; that they gained access to his place of confinement, wan his confidence by their sympathy, obtained his release, and transported him in the face of the admiring world a guest to their own shores; that then they turned away and left him unprotected, unacknowledged, and unrecognized, to be the scoff of his enemies and of his cause.

The United States hold up the right hand and answer—not guilty.

The records of the last Congress are read; the President's Message and the records of the Senate respecting this resolution; Hungary rests her

The United States appear by counsel; the ar-dent Senator from Alabama, the earnest Senator from Georgia, the astate Senator from North Carolina, the caudid Senator from Kentscky, and last, and greatest of all, the learned and ven-erable Senator from Georgia. Their defence is emble Schator from Georgia. The court pronounces its judgment, and in this judgment I recognize the neuteness of the light-ning-functor, and the practical common sense of Poor Richard.

Poor Richard.
You plead that your invitation justified no expectation of welcome. How then came Kossath, England, France, the world, your own President and people, to understand it so? When you were learning the I onored Hungarian chief in triumph through the straits of Gibnaltar, would you not have resented an insult to him as an insult to some flor?

not have resented an insult to that as an insult to your own flag?

Since when was it that you revised the card of invitation, to see how cheap the hospitalities which would save your boxer?

You plead that you invited him, as an emisgrant, to take up his lot within your borders.

Is a reception less due to him when he comento family you, and decline; than it would be if he be-sume a perpetual guest? Was your object mere-ly to afford an asylum to hum and his few associby to affind an asymmeto him and his lew asser-nce, or was it not rather to home Hungary, and to give moral aid to her great but declining cause? You plead that and iffine a spirants moved these honors in your Senate. Has, then, the Senate sank so low that there are no real partials there to vindicate the national honor by giving their pomerous voices to a movement confessedly great? penerals voices to a movement comessed y great.

You plend that Kossath was a noble by birth, as unistocial by association; that he sustained the her diracy throne, and held his foot-hard pressed upon subject races, until disaster overtook him, and he field for protection to lands of constitutions.

d freedom. Grant that all this was true. Did you not know Grant that all this was true. Did you not know it before you intited him to your shows? If you did not, how will you justify ignorance so great, misconduct so abound?

But who was it that taught you that the Magyor was a noble—a royalist? Not the plebeins of Hungary, not the Creat or Hyrian; but the despots who crushed patrician and plebian, Creat, Selave and Hungarian to the earth, Sclave and Hungarian to the earth.

The youth of Kossuth was spent in the effort to abolish fendalism. His years ripened and his frame hardened in the dangeon of Pesth, in pennice for his labors to establish equality of races and of men. The first act of his ministry, on the actionation of the national constitution, was to establish equality of representation, suffrage and taxation, and abolish all the terms of serf lombid by the Congress and the people of the United States maintain their loyalty to the British throne for an whole year after they had been outlawed from its protection? You plend that you left him to the hospitalities of the people, and he received from them a generous welcome. True. But if that was all that was intended, why did you not leave him in his exile.

intended, why did you not leave him in his exue, to be sought out and brought to your shores by private sympathy?

If that was enough, and was justified, why do you complain that Kossuth spoke of the people as being sovereigns of the Government, in adopting their hospitalities, as you own you sanction the compliment he paid to them?

come to him. The more sname to that Congress. The disagreement was a custom more honored in the breach than in the observance.

But when were Kassuth's merits less than those of Lafayette? Lafayette contributed to deliver your country first—then his own. Kossuth found your country free, and fell in delivering his own—then he sought to raise her, and with her, prostate Channa and Luly. - then he sought to know her, and with her, pos-trate Orimany and Italy.

But you say that the honors proposed to Kos-su-h would have been an insult to Russia! Have you then given Russia the right to prescribe the guests whom you shall receive, and the quests whom you shall repel?

whom you shall repel?

But you feared that it would lead to intervention in European affairs. There is no occasion and no chance for intervention. Russia has intercental, and you and England looked on. His lordship said, "that although between six and seven trillions of people bad visited the building, only twenty-five offenders had been taken by the police withinit. He would tell them the reason. At the first opening there were only three doors opened for entrance, and the persons entering were supplied with cands which directed them to places reserved for their accommutation. There were police officers skilled in the knowledge of the necessary of the most reprochabilation in European and the proof ten necessary. were police officers skilled in the knowledge of the persons of the most remarkable thives in Eu-robe, stationed at the doors, and when the mem-hers of what was called the swell mob presented themselves, thay received cards which sent them all to a particular box, where some thirty mem-hers of the confraternity found themselves assem-bled to practice upon one another, (great laughter,) whereupon they came to the manifecus conclu-sion that the police regulations were too perfect for them, and so they had better go home at once."

Gov. Parwell is at home ones more, and Gov. Parwell is at home ones more, and Lt. Gov. Burns has been stopping in town a day or two. If there are two men in the state possessing nobler qualities of head and heart, we have been mable to find them out. The political wal between them crumbles 1-fore the flow of natural good humor with which their souls are filled, and makes every one forget for the time being, which side of the fence be belongs on. ### GREAT FIRE IN BUPPALO BUFFALO, Dec. 27.

The most severe fire we have experienced for years visited us last night. It broke out in the magnificent buildings on Main st., opposite the Mansion House, and speed as far as Spalding's Exchange Block, Eric Hall and Bank of Attica. Several spacious stores were entirely consumed I extended down Commercial and Eric streets corning several valuable buildings on each The coldness of the night and the searcity of water rendered it impossible to subdue the fearful progress of the flames.

During the time this fire was raging, another alarm up town was given. It proceeded from Swan-st., where private dwellings were discovered on fire. The Firemen could not divide their
